    TITLE    

Hook: There are many ways to describe a “good leader”, what is your definition?

Background: In the classic novel, The Lord of the Flies, by William Golding, a group of young boys found themselves on a deserted island, with no adults and authority to watch over them. It’s a battle of survival and focusing on the rights and wrongs in a society through this group of young British boys.

Topic: There were two leaders in the novel, Ralph and Jack, they both represented a different aspects both positive and negative views of what a leader should be.

Thesis: Jack has a natural feeling of enthusiasm, pride, and very goal driven personality, even the chosen leader Ralph has always felt inferior to.

Paragraph 1

Topic: Without enthusiasm, there can’t be any other way to inspire and motivate their men to build up to the conditions they want to live in.
